A Capital City

With only 8,600 citizens, Montpelier ranks as the seventh smallest state capital in the nation.

A town charter was granted to Montpelier in 1781, but it was not until ten years later that there were enough people to tell that a community existed, with a grand population of 113. This was the year that Vermont was admitted into the Union. A short time later, in 1805, Montpelier became the state capital by virtue of its central location and the generosity of local businessmen, who literally outbid other towns for the privilege; the first statehouse, a wooden building, cost them $9,000.

Brick buildings now line the downtown streets to prevent a recurrence of the great fire of 1875, which devastated the majority of the stately wooden edifices that made up the downtown area. The great flood of 1927, which brought waters as high as 12 feet, also threatened to destroy Montpelier. Both times Montpelier rebuilt with pride.

Proud of Montpelier's heritage and citizens, city fathers immortalized its local heroes with such place names as Hubbard Park, Kellogg-Hubbard Library, and Langdon Street.

Visitors are beckoned by the sign on I-89.

To Live

Being a child in a community like Montpelier meant many things. It meant walking in the street to get around tourists who gazed in awe at the golden dome when the golden arches were more likely to be on one's mind. It meant getting to the Farmers' Market to eat the best apples around or to choose that huge pumpkin that would soon be a scary jack-o-lantern. It meant watching the community turn out for a cross-country race. It meant getting on Dad's shoulders to see the Fourth of July parade because the whole town had turned out to watch. It meant spending all summer at the rec pool, striving to be promoted from struggling tadpoles to superb swimmers.

To Learn

Getting older opened new doors. MEEP brought welcome relief from the more rigorous academics at Main Street. Whether playing or watching, we found Legion ball at the rec field, under the lights, captivating. Occasional trips from Main Street School to see high school musical and dramatic productions sharpened our anticipation of future high school days. In admiration and awe, we watched the big kids' athletic contests. We clapped as loudly as anyone at their graduation.

Finally it was our turn. We entered high school and were swept up by the transformation of children into young adults. Study halls took up any free time during school. Teachers wanted reports, and that meant lots of time in the library, testing to see how much Mrs. Cassort would let us get away with before kicking us out. Playing a sport meant a real commitment, with practices every day and a huge list of training rules. Of course we wanted to be a part of every activity — Student Council, Masque, Latin Club and all the others! U.S. History, Communications I, and PE and Health separated us from the upperclassmen, who made sure we fully understood that separation during freshmen initiation.

Playing was out; learning was in.

To Grow

Being upperclassmen seemed to be the epitome of all our dreams.

As sophomores we knew all the ropes. We did not have to contend with study halls, and our choice of courses was more open. We stood a chance of winning something during homecoming and of making a varsity team.

By the time we were juniors, we had survived Mr. Brown's and Mr. Tucker's driver's ed. classes and had licenses. We participated in the community-sponsored Shadow Program. We used our sports waivers to get out of spending lunch periods playing tennis for Miss Stowell and sneaked out of school for a shake and fries at McDonald's.

Senior year started before school did, with senior portrait sittings at Lizzari's. Finally rewarded with senior privileges, we took off after our last classes, leaving the underclassmen to endure afternoon home room alone. We chose a freshman to initiate and planned rotten things for our unsuspecting victims to make up for our own receptions. Then suddenly, in a whirl, the Senior Dinner-Dance took us up to graduation time, and we realized that we were capital adults off to capture the world.

Dedication 1984 Miss Carolyn Silsby

As we, the graduating class of 1984, leave Montpelier High School, we leave with a feeling of satisfaction in knowing that along the path to greater education we have not only made close friends but shared fond memories. Many of these memories have been made with one person.

She has been both a friend and a fantastic teacher. She has made students realize the importance of a good education and reaching for realistic goals in life. Her sense of humor and personality never failed to come through to make learning a little easier.

We, the senior class of 1984, now honor her many extra hours of devoted time and effort by dedicating our yearbook to Miss Carolyn Silsby.

A Profile Of Excellence: 20-Year Veteran Miss Silsby

By SARA WIDNESS

Last Christmas a teenage girl was avoiding calorie-rich goodies trying to shed a few pounds. All was going well until she went to her biology class at Montpelier High School. There, the teacher, Carolyn Silsby, handed out Christmas cookies designed to resemble biological concepts the students were working on. Hers was a DNA-shaped creation.

"I just had to eat my cookie. Miss Silsby went to so much work to make them," was the response.

And therein lies a basic ingredient for Miss Silsby's teaching prowess: She works hard — sometimes, she thinks, too hard — for her classes. But the result is that she's a personality who stands the test of time in students' memories and who evokes in some students the pursuit of excellence and in others the admission that if they tried, they, too, could pursue excellence. They know it's there with her.

Petite (just over 5 feet tall), blond, bespectacled Miss Silsby is in her 20th year of teaching at Montpelier High School. A native of St. Johnsbury, she studied education and mathematics at the University of Vermont and after graduation taught math in Newport for five years. While there she taught a biology class, too. It was then she decided that if she were to stay in teaching, she would be more satisfied in biology.

So her new interests took her to the University of Wisconsin where in three years and after what she calls "a great experience" she earned a master's degree in biology.

She was hired over the phone, she recalls, to come to Montpelier to teach.

Today she teaches biology 2, a course some students take because they think it will be easier than chemistry, although it isn't; advanced placement biology, which can earn students up to five credits in science at their future college; and algebra.

And teaching, she says, is her first love.

"I love it," she says. "I like teaching too much to leave the classroom. It's something I just enjoy doing."

She prefers teaching biology to algebra but prepares her algebra lessons as meticulously as if for a laboratory experiment. Structuring her lessons carefully, she says, "I have to feel my way through how they're going to learn best. I design a strategy almost every day that will fit the group. You do the best you can. That's the challenge."

She says that "if anyone is going to cooperate in class to learn, I'm there to help them."

Chris Shepard, a senior in her advanced placement biology class, says, "The way Miss Silsby teaches is more stimulating. In the high school environment you do things in a different light, see more things. I'm a lot more interested in biology than I thought I would be."

It's these comments and other rewards that keep her in the classroom, such as when a student's face lights up and he says, "Oh, I got it!"

"I guess I just like working with kids, seeing them get excited about learning, providing the learning environment, hoping they enjoy learning and derive a satisfaction from learning," she says. "It's the response you get from this that's exciting. Sometimes you have to work to get the response. It's harder to get excited in math than in biology. A lot of biology is an appreciation of life."

She applies a good dose of psychology to her teaching style. For example, on a recent day, a biology class pursued, in a short hour, the following:

— A quiz that when finished each student personally handed to her at the front of the room and that elicited a personal "thank you" from the teacher.

— A quick review of slides of wildflowers studied on an earlier field trip that had even husky, football-jersey-clad students scrambling to call out the answers. For this, the students had to move in close to the front of the room to see the slides. In calling out their answers they sounded more like a cheering squad than a class. "You did a good job," she praised. "You haven't seen those since the second day of school."

— A homework assignment for the weekend involving reading a handout related to the current subject. Using handouts, she says, is a way to keep up-to-date with information in the field of biology that changes very rapidly.

— A brief discussion of pond water samples the students had collected.

— A short film that helped synthesize subjects the students were working on and that was a gentle ending to an intense week in the classroom, for teacher and students.

Variety in presentation, she says, allows her to move from one thing to the next. "There are little techniques you pick up, like letting them stretch their legs. The younger they are, the more important it is to have variety. When they move close to the room, then they're working closer together as a group."

It works. She has established such MHS traditions as Miss Silsby's Fall Flower Field Frolic, an annual trek around the tennis courts to find and identify flowers. This year her students found as many as 45 different kinds. Her students also take a Tree Trip Treat to identify trees, and another trip planned for spring on National Life grounds last year was called the Spring Season Sprout Search (students get to name their treks).

And she has developed an instinct in her students that moves them to perform tasks above and beyond the call of the biology classroom. For example, students have, over the years, found, dead, a woodchuck, porcupine and other small wild beasts that they have dutifully brought to Miss Silsby who pops them into the freezer until someone volunteers to perform taxidermy operations on them.

"I like biology," says Heidi Citrini, a biology 2 student. "Just investigating, going out and looking at things you don't really see. It's amazing what's in that water!"

Miss Silsby has been known to get down on her hands and knees in front of her students to demonstrate anterior and posterior. And even though she has viewed living creatures in water under the microscope thousands of times, here's how she still reacts when a student asks her to look at a specimen.

"What a beautiful rotifer! All right! That's neat. Look at the wheels going around!"

Or, under another microscope, "I'm not sure, but I think the stuff that looks like that I have a sneaky feeling might be bacteria. You know, that guy is working his way into this junk. Look at that guy. There he goes. See him! Get him! He glides along beautifully. Squash him up. Good catch! Have you ever seen paramoecia mating? You caught them in the act!"

For relaxation Miss Silsby allows herself a night out a week playing the baritone horn in practice with a brass ensemble out of Norwich University. She will be on stage with her horn this weekend for a Brunch with Bach performance at Vermont College. She sings in the Unitarian Church choir, serves as treasurer for the Vermont Science Teachers' Association board, gardens, hikes, plays tennis in the summer and enjoys Audubon Society activities.

The rest of the time she is most likely working on lesson plans or preparing a lab experiment for the next day.

"I go at a clip, but I have to do it so they, the students, don't feel really pushed," she says. "A lot is done here that never shows. But if I weren't dedicated, I would be dissatisfied."

The above article appeared on September 28, 1982, in The Times Argus. It is reprinted with their permission.

To you, the Class of 1984, we owe so much. Your indomitable spirit and your school leadership have been hallmarks of the school and examples to be emulated by the classes which follow you. Your determination and motivation in the classroom and on the athletic fields and courts have been sources of inspiration to me and to the others who know you. You will be counted among those who have helped to build the fine traditions of Montpelier High School.

A great deal of what you are today you owe to your teachers. Decades from now you will still be able to remember many of your teachers, not because of any particular thing you learned from the textbook, but because of the care and concern they expressed for you.

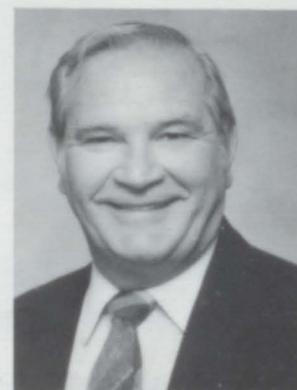

There will be tears shed at graduation, some for the utter joy and relief for finishing this part of your life, some for the fear of the unknown which lies ahead, and many for the severing of ties you have had with classmates and teachers at Montpelier High. I will miss all of you, my first class of seniors, but memories of our year together will remain with me.

Best wishes for good health and success in future years.

Teacher at Work

During October Mr. Alan Blakeman's students had to make do with a substitute while their teacher became a student. Mr. Blakeman spent three weeks in Japan getting an overall look at its economy, from a grape farm co-operative to automotive and steel plants. One day of the tour was spent at Inokuchi High School; not unsurprisingly, Mr. Blakeman was promptly surrounded by young people.

On November 26, she walked down the aisle of Worcester United Methodist Church to become the bride of Mr. Andrew Hutchins.

Gold Foil

During the day the sun strikes the dome and bounces blindingly back into one's eyes. At night the dome takes on a purplish cast as spotlights reflect off its surface. The grandeur of the splendid sheath of gold on top of Vermont's State House is awesome.

Amazingly enough, that gold is so incredibly thin that it disintegrates when rolled between one's fingers. The weather plays havoc with the gold foil and redecorating periodically is a necessity. This process takes place every ten years and was done in 1976. It took forty ounces of pure (23.75 carat) gold to cover the fifty-seven foot high dome, at a cost of $20,000. Workers spent nearly two weeks painstakingly rolling small patches of gold onto the glue-covered dome, using a four-inch wide roll of paperbacked gold measuring only one two hundred thousandth of an inch. The workers had to be careful while putting it on lest a slight breeze blow it away. When the glue was set, they peeled the paper off and "voila!" The dome was once again perfectly golden.

Ceres

She stands on top of the Capitol dome, 14 feet tall and glisteningly white. Her name is Ceres, the Roman goddess of agriculture and the symbol of fruitfulness, a fitting emblem for the rural state of Vermont.

The original wooden statue was replaced in 1938 when workers discovered it was rotting and nearly ready to fall off the dome. A replica was carved in the Capitol basement but was too large to be carried up the narrow stairway to the dome, so it was sliced into 16 pieces and reassembled at the top.

The wood is coated with a protective coat of white paint. To be seen over the curve of the 57-foot dome, the statue is mounted on a six-foot pedestal, and as a tribute to the works of Ben Franklin, she is topped with a lightning rod.

Great Guns

There are two ship guns on the lawn of the State house, seemingly ready to blast the Department of Motor Vehicles at any moment. They are not, and fortunately for Admiral George Dewey, they did not blow up any ships either.

The guns are from a ship sunk during the Battle of Manila Bay, the turning point of the Spanish-American War, on May 1, 1898. There were ten ships sunk that day, consisting of the entire Spanish fleet. There were no American deaths — thanks to Admiral Dewey.

Admiral Dewey was born and raised in Montpelier, in a house that once stood near where the guns are pointing. He attended Norwich University and eventually became the third man in the history of the United States to be appointed Admiral of the Navy. He served in this supreme position for eighteen years until his death in 1917.

The guns are a constant reminder of the heroes that Montpelier has produced.

Varsity Football
The football team has been practicing hard for the season. They will be competing in the state championship. The team is led by Coach [Name]. They have a strong defense and a powerful offense. They are looking forward to a successful season.

SPORTS

Varsity Football

In the middle of August, when most students were still enjoying their summer, the 1983 Solons started double session workouts under the supervision of Francis Brooks and Burt Morrison. It was Coach Brooks' first year as head coach and the team was hoping to give him a winning season.

The Solons did not complete the season with a winning record (3-6), but gave it everything they had. Team Captains Tim Murray and Bill Bates did a great job keeping team moral up through the whole season.

The Solons were 2-4 with wins against North Country and BFA before the Homecoming Game. In the Homecoming Game against Burlington, the Solons turned in their strongest performance. Gordon Rice returned the opening kick-off 75 yards for the score. From there everything seemed to go right. The offense, which was led by quarterback Mike Whitney, running back Todd Pembroke, ends Brian Carpenter and Mitch Gowans, and tackle Rick Garand, ripped the Seahorse defense for 33 points. The defense also did well, holding the Seahorse offense to 12 points. Turning in fine defensive performances were Mike Ruby, Tom Murray, Jack Hill, Rick Cleveland, and Pat McGinley.

Each Solon player worked hard through the year and should be proud of his accomplishments.

J.V. Football

The 1983 J.V. Football team, coached by Brent Curtis and John Smyrski, finished the season with a 3-5 record.

There are many individuals who should be recognized for their outstanding efforts.

After injury to quarterback Chris Magan in the first game, sophomore Roger Colombo was forced into taking the position of quarterback. He did an excellent job and was elected team captain by his teammates at the end of the season.

The J.V. Solon wins were against Rice, BFA, and North Country. The most exciting game of the season was a 19-18 victory over BFA. The winning margin turned out to be an extra point kick by Todd Eardensohn. Bob McLeod scored all three Montpelier touchdowns.

In the season finale against Spaulding, sophomore Bob Browning had a strong performance to finish the season. Bob stunned their defense with three touchdowns runs. He had been a strong performer on both offense and defense all year.

It was a team effort that made the above outstanding efforts possible. Each team member had good performances of his own during the course of the year.

Varsity Field Hockey

The Montpelier Girls' Varsity team had a very successful, growing season coached by Miss Joy Stowell.

Every individual on the team should be recognized for her outstanding abilities and efforts.

The team started off red hot on September 6, beating U-32 1-0 and went on to bump off Oxbow 5-1. The success probably would have continued, but unfortunately, injuries struck; however, the hard work and dedication paid off when the team made it to the quarter finals against B.F.A., at Bellows Falls, where the season ended on October 22 with a 0-2 massacre by B.F.A.

Jenny Donald and Karen Boisvert were captains for the squad during their season of 5 wins, 4 losses, and 3 ties. The team really gave it their all to perform as a TEAM. It was an experienced-filled season.

J.V. Field Hockey had a good season this year. Although the team had ups and downs, the players did a good job. The first game, against U-32, was a loss that should have been a win. The final score was 3-1, with Susanne Jordan scoring the only goal. The biggest victory was against Lake Region at home. The final score was 3-0 with Susanne Jordan, Allison Thurston, and Caroline Costello making the goals.

This year saw a few changes. Miss Stowell coached both J.V. and Varsity. Miss Stowell did a good job in coaching both teams fairly. Michelle Perron took over as goalie for J.V. and did a spectacular job. Gina Meunier joined the J.V. team for the first time. Allison Thurston, who was new to the school this year, also joined the team. These changes helped the team.

Cross Country

Both the boys' and the girls' cross country teams had excellent seasons this year, and Coach Phillips cited the team "for coming closer to fulfilling its potential than any other team in the last few years."

Led by senior captain Jon Rouelle, the boys' varsity team placed sixth in the state meet. The team goal of qualifying for New England's was missed, but only by two points in the Meet of Champions.

The girls' varsity team was more successful, qualifying for the New England's race. Led by sophomore Julie Rouelle and senior co-captains Karen Demingware and Camilla Schamaun, the girls finished fifth in the state meet.

Both teams travelled to the Portsmouth relay and had an opportunity to run on Hampton Beach and swim in the surf the night before the meet.

The combination of team spirit, hard work, and fun made it an enjoyable and rewarding season for all involved.

Varsity Basketball

For the Solon hoopsters, the 1983-84 season was a tough one. The young Solons were hoping to contend with the larger Division I schools, but they never got started.

Though the Solons finished 3-17, there were some exciting moments. Going into the fifth game of the season, a much larger C.V.U. team was heavily favored. With 10 points down and one minute left, it looked like another loss; however, the game went into overtime and the Solons rallied to win their first game.

Junior Pat McGinley led the team in scoring and junior Victor Pepin was the top rebounder for the team that could be a strong contender for the Division II State Championship. Only seniors Jack Hill, Dan Morse, and Rob Start will be leaving the team, so Coach Drew and his very experienced ball club will be competitive next year.

J.V. Basketball

Although the 1984 J.V. Basketball season did not end with an impressive record, the Solon team was very enthusiastic.

Some of the games lost were close, down to the last few minutes, and could have gone either way.

Coach Czok's five starters (M. Denis, T. LaChapelle, J. Rathburn, J. Fitzgerald, C. Garcia) set the pace for the opponents with J. Brown, B. Higgins, and E. Fechter coming off the bench to add to the excitement. Also S. Robinson, S. Rice, R. Rowell, and R. Welch contributed.

Consistently through the season, the J.V.'s improved under Coach Czok's supervision, never giving up under pressure.

Girls' Varsity Basketball

Many unforgettable records were set this year as the intense Girls' Varsity Basketball team blasted through their best season ever, earning a home playoff game from the hard work of a 13-5 record.

This year's talented basketball team was under the skillful new leadership of Coach Crowley, former J.V. coach. His expert knowledge and instruction boosted the team to championship heights. The team's hustle, merciless offense, and pressure defense rewarded them with the most outstanding season record yet: 15-6!

The toughest game of the regular season was an almost-win over Oxbow. It was a hard, emotional game that went down to the wire, Montpelier losing by 2 points to the never-beaten Oxbow.

The 62-55 win over rival U-32 was the most satisfying accomplishment of the season, especially since U-32 edged Montpelier by one point in their first encounter.

For the first time in history, a Solon girl achieved that ultimate, desirable goal — a 1,000 point career. The outstanding player who skillfully accomplished this feat was senior superstar Karen Boisvert. Sharpshooter that she is, she did not stop at 1,000 but tallied an additional 68 points to end her high school career.

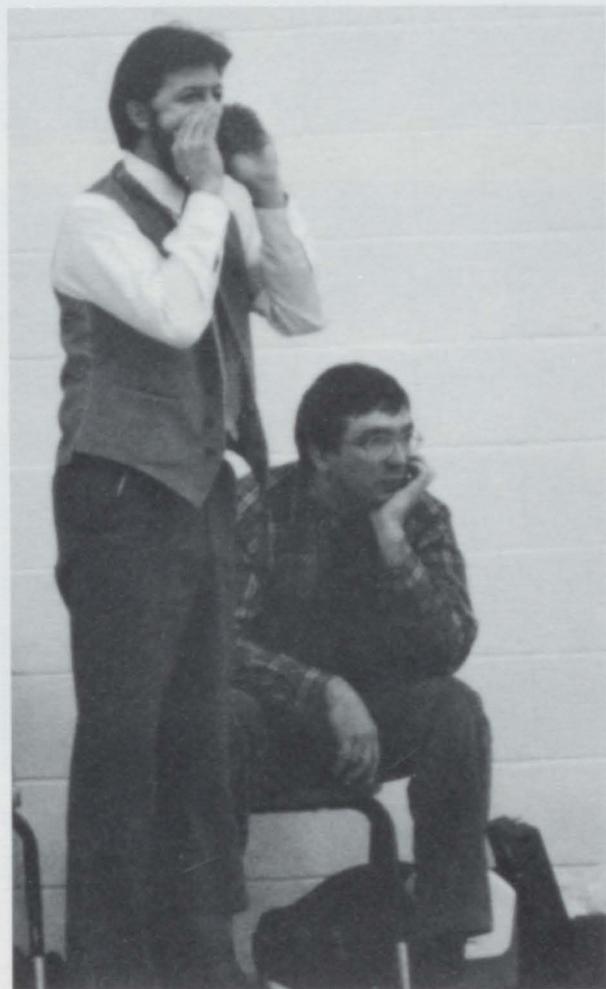

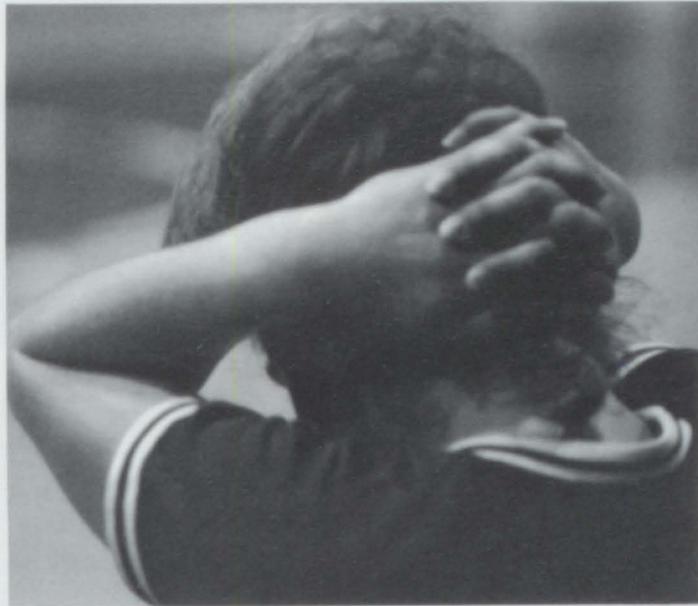

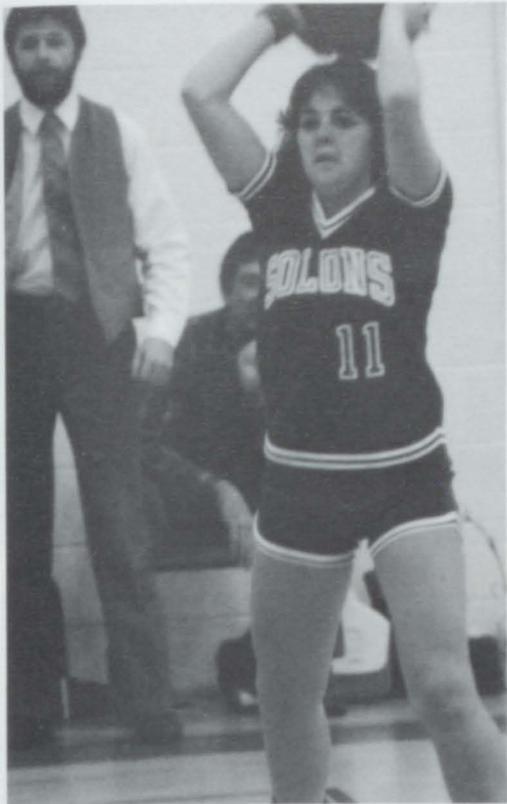

For the first time in MHS history, the girls stifled their playoff opponent, 60-42. Travelling two hours to their quarter-final host, they arrived ready to run and ran off with a 63-42 victory and a semi-final game at the Barre Auditorium, two more firsts. They lost a tough, heart-breaking game there to St. Johnsbury, who later became state champs.

This year's close and unique team is graduating five notable seniors, but next year's team promises to be strong with many excellent players returning.

The Junior Varsity Girls' Basketball team, coached by first-year coach Mr. Shaneberger, had an outstanding season this year. They had an unprecedented record of 16 wins and 2 losses. In Division II play the girls were undefeated. Their only losses were attributed to one team, Spaulding. Both of these games were very close. The successful season must be credited to the whole team's effort and hard work throughout the year. As in every team, there were some outstanding members. The Solons' leading scorers were Stacey Johnston, sophomore; Katie Whitney, sophomore; Shannon Babcock, freshman; and Maggie Whitney, freshman. In future years, expect to see a very strong Varsity team made up of these girls, which could possibly win a championship.

The skating Solons began their 1983-84 campaign as a young, inexperienced team with hopes of at least making the playoffs. The Solons seemed to be coming to a reality as they held a 6-4 record at the halfway point and possessed fourth place in the league.

While playing strong hockey, the Solons hit a slump. They had eight games left and proceeded to lose seven in a row. The Solons faced Lyndon in their last game; it was a win-lose situation in order to achieve the .400% win/lose record needed to enter the playoffs. The Cagers were down 3-0 after the first period, and playoff hopes were optimistic. The Solons exploded in the second period and went on to win 5-3 and make the playoffs. Seeded sixth, the Solons had to play the third-seeded Middlebury, a team that the Solons had played their best game of the regular season against yet still lost 4-3. The Solons traveled to Rutland for a 7-1 shalacking of Middlebury and a quarter final victory.

The semi-finals were to be played at Gutterson Field House at U.V.M. and the opponent was to be second-seeded Mount Mansfield Union.

The Solons again had a shot to make it to the finals for the first time in seven years. The game was hard fought and very well played by the Solons, yet they became the losers with a score of MMU-7, MHS-4. The Solons ended the season with a record of 9-11-1.

Gymnastics

The 1984 Gymnastics' season was truly a special one. The girls, led by Co-Captains Michele Trudel and Cindy Bruzzese, performed and achieve their personal best.

The new Gymnastics coach, Gail Goreman, did a superb job of coaching the team with her unlimited talents.

Four of the team members qualified for individual states in vaulting: Angela Ochmanski, freshman; Holly Buttura, sophomore; Cindy Bruzzese, junior; and Michele Trudel, senior. Cindy Bruzzese also qualified in Floor Exercise.

Ski Team Alpine

The girls' Alpine Ski Team had a very successful season this year. Led by Captain Andrea Wilson, the team finished well in the district finals. Andrea placed second in slalom, and Caroline Costello placed fifteenth. Giant slalom proved even better with Andrea finishing fourth and her sister Laura, second.

The boys' Alpine Ski Team worked very hard. Led by Captain Tony Facos, they placed well in districts and states.

Under the fine coaching of Mr. David McGraw many excellent skiers emerged, Fred Costello and Josh Diamond among them.

Cross Country

The girls' Cross Country Ski Team was led by junior Anne Czaplinski, who finished ninth in districts. Other outstanding girls were Kim Tilley, Camilla Schamaun, and Päivi Pietarila, all seniors.

The boys' Cross Country Ski Team was led by senior Matt Czaplinski, who finished fifteenth in districts. Other outstanding boys were Mark Premo, Al Burdett, and Matt Allard.

At the crack of dawn, 6:22 a.m., on October 23, a red Mercedes truck rumbled through a Lebanese army checkpoint near the U.S. Marine Battalion Landing Team headquarters at Beirut International Airport. It picked up speed, crashed a roll of barbed wire, sped between sentry bunkers and burst through a wrought iron gate into the Marine compound. The driver then triggered a cargo of more than two tons of TNT. All four sections of the structure slammed to earth, crushing most of the 300 occupants.

A.F.S. Student Miss Päivi Pietarila

I — Päivi — ended up at MHS to spend a year with A.F.S. From Finland to Vermont sounds like a mistake, doesn't it?

I didn't have a choice of the place that I wanted to go. When I got accepted to Vermont, I thought it was a big, big mistake. While filling out many application forms, I had tried to give hints that I like sun and warm temperatures — perhaps they misunderstood me?

Yet Montpelier — even as small as it is — has filled my year. I haven't had time to be cold either. MHS has taken good care of me.

I spend a lot of time on cross-country skiis and belong to the cross-country ski team. Many times I have been ready to throw the skiis away, but the team made me stick with them. It was a nice and sticky experience that will stay in my mind though the wax has gone away from my fingertips.

This year has been a wonderful experience. I've learned a lot about American life, along with the English language. Except for the language problems on my part and the problem with the dots in my name on your part, I have been a happy MHSer for a year.

Another "Capital" City

Montreal

Boarding the bus at 7:00 AM on October 11 and again on October 21, Mr. Romero Aja accompanied his Modern European and World History classes on field trips to Montreal. Both of these days were jam-packed with fun-filled and educational activities that kept the students busy.

After passing through customs, the students' first stop was St. Sebastien. This feudal village was a good resting point where the students were exposed to medieval times.

Traveling onward to St. Joseph's Oratory, the groups were able to see where Brother Andre completed his life's work. Some were in awe while others were uneasy at the inexplicable feeling about the oratory.

The groups proceeded to the Italian market place where bread and pastries were bought and food prices were compared.

Lunch, which was eaten at Jacques Cartier Place in Old Town Montreal, consisted of pizza, a buffet, or brown bag lunches, which were shared with pigeons. After lunch, the students visited beautiful Notre Dame Cathedral and other attractions in Old Town.

The next stop was China Town. The groups were let loose to wander in the stores. Some students discovered that they were not welcome while others decided to purchase Chinese goods in order to fit in with the natives.

Both field trips concluded at stores and restaurants located in downtown Montreal.

To bring the tour to a grand finale, one group traveled up Mont Royal for a last glimpse of Montreal.

The rides home were very quiet ones: everyone was resting from the long, tiring, but very successful excursions.

Homecoming

Homecoming was a winner all the way. The days were filled with activity, creativity, and fun.

Thursday, October 13 — Powder Puff Football Game for the girls and Big Guy Volleyball Match for the boys. The juniors, mighty and fierce, won both events.

Monday, October 17 — Girls' Hush Day. The senior boys proved to be most irresistible, but Christopher Couture secured the title of "Mr. Irresistible" of 1983-84.

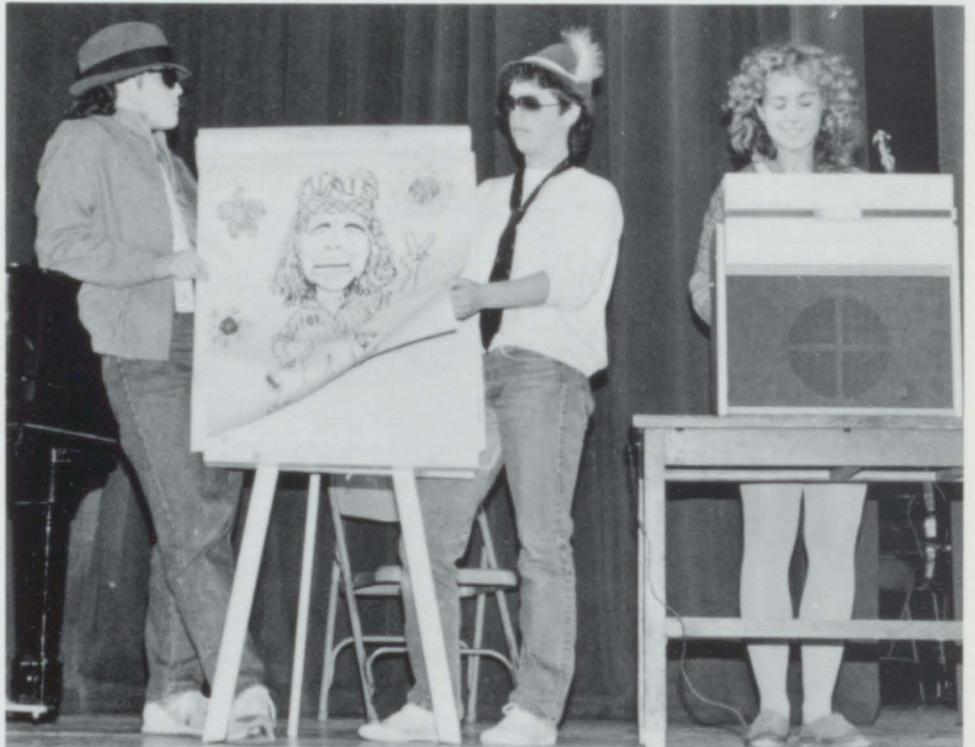

Tuesday, October 18 — Hat and Shades Day and the "This Is Your Life" Assembly. The seniors and juniors tied for participation in the costume event. Everyone was a winner at the program honoring Mrs. Barbara Austin-Hutchins. The assembly, narrated by Beth Austin, featured not only the usual brief laudatory speeches but also extremely tasteful caricatures drawn by Al Burdett, highlighting Mrs. Austin-Hutchins' eyes, of course.

Wednesday, October 19 — Backwards Day and the Jello Eating Contest. Again, seniors and juniors tied for participation in the costume event; however, Margaret Whitney and Peter Mills-Brown placed first for the freshmen in slurping up their orange jello. Seniors Carol Rivers and Jeff Otten, juniors Maureen O'Donnell and Joseph Canales (who came in second), and sophomores Tonja Curtis and David Halford also participated in the jello joust.

Thursday, October 20 — Costume Day. Michael Marineau, senior, placed first as a punk rocker. Brian Burdett, sophomore, placed second as a buxom woman. Maureen O'Donnell and Cynthia Bruzzese, juniors, placed third as pillow people. Margaret LeDoux, freshman, placed fourth as a clown.

Friday, October 21 — Green and White Day, Pep Rally, and Bonfire. The seniors had the most participation in the school colors, but the juniors had the loudest voices in the yelling contest.

Saturday, October 22 — Parade, Football Game, and Dance. In float competition the juniors placed first with the entry "Roast the Seahorses." The biggest win to complete Homecoming Week was the Solons' victory over the Seahorses; remember Gordon Rice's touchdown in the first eight seconds of the game? Everyone bade a fond farewell to a week of festivity to the music of Lead Sounds with Ed Rice and Trevor LaChapelle. Saga won the airband contest with Jason Mallery, Carl Quesnel, Matt Czaplinski, Jon Nuquist, and Matt Allard as the band.

Top: Mrs. Austin-Hutchins greets former teaching colleague Mr. Bruce Talbot, who was participating in Hat and Shades Day.

Masque

Masque was greeted this year by a new director, Ms. Catherine Carr. From Los Angeles to Broadway to the MHS doors, Ms. Carr proved herself by tackling two plays, THE DUCK VARIATIONS and CHAMBER MUSIC. Her innovation of having multiple casts for the first play allowed many members to show their talents.

Top: George (Miriam Novogrodsky) and Emil (Terry Richmond) talk about ducks.

Center: Adriana Cheever, Sarah Abbott, and Nastasha Stoczek are the dancing ducks.

Bottom: George (Jason Mallery) and Emil (Susan Alexander) contemplate the duck situation.

Community Service

On December 20, the Basic Foods classes at the high school put on a turkey dinner for local senior citizens. Mr. Ashley welcomed the twenty-five guests, and after dinner, entertainment was provided by Collegium. The students enjoyed putting on the meal, and the senior citizens enjoyed themselves, also.

Christmas Ball

The Student Council began the year on the right note by sponsoring the annual Homecoming Week. The group also sponsored regular events, such as soc-hops and the Christmas Ball. In October, the Council gave help outside the school by organizing and running a Haunted House at the Rec. Department's Halloween Party for community youngsters.

Throughout the winter the Council was responsible for drives for the needy. The first was an annual event, the canned food drive. The second was a new event, the drive to build up the Nurse's Fund. Students and faculty donated over $250.

A Capital Place to Ski

Do you remember when you went to school on January 9 and saw snowmaking machines in front of the Statehouse? By Tuesday, January 10, the graceful steps leading up to the Capitol had become a gentle slope for government officials to glide down in support of the local ski industry.

The 1984 RECORD advertising campaign became a contest this year. Thanks to the hard work of thirteen teams, the yearbook staff not only met but surpassed its $5,000 goal. Cathleen Pembroke and Melody Campbell placed first in the ad contest and received cash prizes of $50 each. Tonja Curtis and Cynthia Bashara placed second; both received a $20 gift certificate at Buch Spieler. Two teams placed third: Elizabeth Cover, Shari Fitch, Laura Parry, and Sandra Poitras; each will receive a complimentary 1984 RECORD. The yearbook staff thanks all the students who helped the RECORD meet its goal. The staff appreciates the tremendous support the Montpelier business community has given.
